about tyrannosaurus rex

Tyrannosaurus rex, a.k.a T-rex, means “tyrant lizard king” in Latin. It was one of the largest meat-eating dinosaurs (carnivores). Some scientists believe T-rex was a hunter, but others think he was a scavenger, finding animals that were already dead or wounded. Regardless, T-rex had amazing senses – good vision, great sight, and the ability to feel vibrations. Although its tiny arms could not touch each other, T-rex could still lift almost 400 pounds!
